CURRENT SITUATION:

Yesterday, as the inversion lifted, the fire intensified presenting challenges for containment lines. In the southern Kidder Creek area, additional resources were deployed to proactively manage the fire's advance. Secondary lines were utilized as necessary when fire activity escalated too much to allow direct engagement in the Kidder Creek area.. Additionally, aircraft conducted water drops to contain spot fires on the southwestern perimeter.

Today, resources continue to go direct on the Shackleford Ridge working southwest towards Campbell and Cliff Lakes. Ensuring structure defensive remains a top priority, engine crews are strategically positioned to safeguard communities at risk in the vicinity.

Drivers in the Shelly Fire area are reminded to drive with extra caution due to the ongoing presence of heavy equipment and fire personnel on or near the roadways.

WEATHER:

Saturday will be another hot and dry day with poor overnight minimum relative humidity recoveries. Enhanced terrain-driven up-canyon winds will continue, with westerly down-canyon winds in the late afternoon and evening. Multiple rounds of isolated dry thunderstorms are possible from Saturday night through Sunday, with a Fire Weather Watch in effect.
