Current Situation: Air Operations continue to support firefighters by extinguishing hot spots in steep, inaccessible terrain near Winters Creek, Mt. Lowe, & Mt. Wilson. Urban Search and Rescue (USAR) operations are scheduled to be completed today. The repopulation of residents is ongoing, with zones being released in phases to ensure safety of public and utility agencies. The infrastructure group is being utilized to conduct assessments, identify needs, and ensure ingress and egress for the firefighters and utility companies into the fire area. Fire suppression repair is currently underway, focusing on restoring and repairing areas damaged during firefighting operations. Watershed assessments are being conducted to identify potential risks to life, property, and infrastructure, particularly from hazards like debris flows and flooding.

Weather: The marine influence will gradually recede today. Very dry conditions with low relative humidity and strong northeast winds are predicted to return tomorrow. The National Weather Service has high confidence in Red Flag conditions from Monday evening into Tuesday.

Damage Assessment: Damage inspection teams have completed inspections for 98% of all structures within the fire perimeter.
