Current Situation: Yesterday, firefighters fortified control lines, extinguished hot spots, and continued mop-up activities. Crews repaired roads, backhauled firehose, and began preparing for rain overnight and through the weekend. With containment now at 92% and evacuation orders lifted the day prior, strike teams patrolled nearby communities to ensure safety. Firefighters and resources began to demobilize, with crews remaining available for future incidents, should they be needed.

Rain and a chance of thunderstorms today and tomorrow should stifle fire activity but could bring localized flash flooding and debris flows, as well as gusty winds. Crews are actively coordinating with the National Weather Service to monitor any oncoming storms. The heaviest rain is expected this afternoon and evening, with a flood watch in effect from 4 p.m. this afternoon to 4 p.m. tomorrow. Residents seeking sandbags for protection against possible debris flow can visit the Los Angeles County Department of Public Works website: <https://dpw.lacounty.gov/dsg/sandbags/>. Shifting winds are expected to bring drier air Tuesday.

Evacuation Map: Communities near the fire remain in an Evacuation Warning status. For the most up-to-date evacuation information visit Protect Genasys using the link: <https://protect.genasys.com>
